

PANCHAYAT COLLEGE, BARGARH

Institutional Distinctiveness

Established in 1960, Panchayat College, Bargarh, has been a cornerstone of higher education in Western Odisha. The college is committed to the holistic development of its students and has made significant contributions to the region's educational, cultural, and social landscape.

Green Campus Initiatives: The college campus is known for its lush greenery and eco-friendly initiatives. Continuous efforts are made to maintain and enhance the green environment, making the campus not only aesthetically pleasing but also conducive to learning.

Cultural Preservation and Transmission: Panchayat College preserves Western Odisha's cultural heritage through events, competitions, and student involvement in Dhanu Yatra, crowd management, and traditional manuscript preservation like Tala Patra.

Village Adaptation: As part of its distinctive work, the college has adopted the village of Ruhunia. Here, students and faculty engage in community outreach programs, educational initiatives, and various development projects aimed at improving the quality of life for the villagers. This adoption reflects the college's commitment to fostering community development and preserving local traditions

Community and Outreach Activities: Panchayat College actively engages in community outreach through students, NCC, and NSS. They organize awareness camps, nukkad plays, and rallies addressing local social issues. A significant focus is on educating the community about the dangers of pesticide use, linked to high cancer rates in Bargarh, and promoting organic farming as a healthier alternative.

Department of Zoology is at the forefront of research on health issues prevalent in Bargarh, such as cancer and chronic kidney disease.

Department of Botany plays a vital role in the preservation of the college's botanical garden and the protection of valuable plant species.

Department of History organizing seminars and workshops that address regional issues, including those affecting tribes and women's social and economic conditions in Western Odisha.

Nisha Nivarana & Swachata Aviyan programme, organized by B.Ed. students for the Adopted Village Ruhunia.

The Department of Psychology is dedicated to raising awareness about mental health issues. It conducts outreach programs and visits special schools for the disabled to understand and address their specific challenges. By engaging with these schools, the department gains insights into the needs of individuals with disabilities and works towards creating a more inclusive and supportive environment.

Commerce Department organized food festival to enhance marketing skills.
